WINSOR DOBBIN - TASMANIAN WINE ONLINE - AUGUST 23

“Lost Farm is the name of the Tasmanian project of South Australia’s Angove Family - it does not have anything to do with the golf course. This is a very fresh and lively 2023 sauvignon blanc with the grapes sourced from two vineyards in the north of the state: one at Relbia, south of Launceston, and the other in the West Tamar. It paired impressively with a pork mince and aubergine stir-fry with its zingy fruit flavours and crisp acidity complementing the spice of the dish. Sauvignon Blanc in Tasmania typically has more tropical fruit flavours than herbal ones; and that is certainly the case here.”

88 POINTS - HALLIDAY WINE COMPANION - 2025

“Light straw with punchy characters of passionfruit, gooseberry and citrus fruits plus hints of crushed stone, almond blossom, tomato leaf, flint, marzipan and drying herbs. Some nice concentration on the palate, with grapefruit tones slipping in before coiling and ending to a concentrated, dry finish showing ample varietal zing and herbaceousness.”
